Period for Reply

A SHORTENED STATUTORY PERIOD FOR REPLY IS SET TO EXPIRE 3 MONTH(S) OR THIRTY (30) DAYS, WHICHEVER IS LONGER, FROM THE MAILING DATE OF THIS COMMUNICATION.

- Extensions of time may be available under the provisions of 37 CFR 1.136(a). In no event, however, may a reply be timely filed after SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- If NO period for reply is specified above, the maximum statutory period will apply and will expire SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- Failure to reply within the set or extended period for reply will, by statute, cause the application to become ABANDONED (35 U.S.C. § 133). Any reply received by the Office later than three months after the mailing date of this communication, even if timely filed, may reduce any earned patent term adjustment. See 37 CFR 1.704(b).

Status

- 1) ☒ Responsive to communication(s) filed on 23 June 2005.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Uhl et al. (4,881,534) in view of Mears (2003/0100905).

Uhl et al discloses a an apparatus (24) for cutting bone comprising a shaft (10) having a central axis and extending between a proximal end portion (12) and a distal end portion, the proximal end portion having a first surface adapted for receiving repetitive impacts, as set forth in column 4, lines47-50, the distal end portion (11) including a cutting blade (16) extending between a shield section and a guide section, the shield section including a inward facing shield surface (15) which extends in a second plane that is transverse to the first plane of the cutting blade, the shield section includes an arcuate end surface (18) for sliding underneath soft tissues present on the outer peripheral surface of the bone of the shaft member is advanced, the shield surface functioning as a shield for the cutting blade to prevent undesired cutting of the soft tissue, wherein the shield includes an outwardly facing ramp surface (17) for cooperating with the arcuate end surface to lift the soft tissue off of the outer peripheral surface of the bone as the shaft member is advanced, the guide section is narrower in width than the shield section. The apparatus is capable of being used for cutting through the cortical bone of a vertebral body.

Art Unit: 3733

It is noted that, Uhl et al did not teach of an apparatus wherein the shield section and the guide section projecting axially beyond the cutting blade to recess the cutting blade in the distal end portion and the guide section comprising a blunt tooth; as claimed by applicant. However, in a similar art, Mears evidences the use of a cutter having a blade that is recessed within two cutting guides each including a bulbous tooth to prevent objects from contacting the blade.

Therefore, given the teaching of Mears, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the distal end cutter of Uhl et al, as taught by Mears, to prevent objects from contacting the blade.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
